The University of Southern California Viterbi School of Engineering congratulates Department of Civil Engineering professor Sami Masri for his receipt of the 2007 Newark Medal from the American Society of Civil Engineers. Each year, the ASCE grants the award to a member who helps strengthen the scientific basis of structural engineering.

Masri was honored in June for “vision and leadership in the field of structural control and health monitoring, and his contributions to the technical development and professional validation of this emerging field.”
