

CONGRATULATIONS TO
PROFESSOR JONG-SHI PANG
NEWLY ELECTED TO THE
NATIONAL ACADEMY OF ENGINEERING

Jong-Shi Pang

The USC Viterbi School of Engineering congratulates Jong-Shi Pang, the Epstein Family Chair and professor of industrial and systems engineering, for his election as a member of the National Academy of Engineering. Election to the National Academy of Engineering is one of the highest professional honors for an engineer.

Pang is an expert in the field of operations research and optimization. He has previously been honored with the John von Neumann Theory Prize and the Lanchester Prize from the Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS) and is a Fellow of INFORMS and the Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics. He has co-authored three widely cited monographs and has published more than 150 scholarly journals in leading peer-reviewed journals.
